Zero Carbon

Homes

WHAT ARE ZERO CARBON HOMES?

A Zero-carbon home is a term used to describe a house that does not emit greenhouse gases, specifically carbon dioxide (CO₂), into the atmosphere. Homes release greenhouse gases through burning fossil fuels in order to provide heat, or cooking. A zero carbon house is achieved by building the home to be very energy efficient and for its energy consumption to be from non-emitting sources.

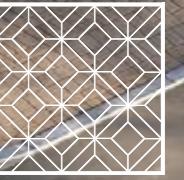

Their design follows the Passivhaus Standard which includes using an airtight building fabric, as well as careful planning of the insulation and ventilation. The result is a home that is ten-times more airtight than industry standards.

Measures like these ensure you're using less energy right across the home. A key example being your heating system, which won't need to work as hard to keep you comfortable, thus reducing costs.

WISBECH, CAMBRIDGESHIRE

Steeped in history...

Wisbech is renowned for its elegant Georgian architecture, a legacy from an era when the town was a booming trade centre and the largest of the Fenland market towns in the district of Cambridgeshire.

While it is still some way off city size, in the absence of another city nearby, this makes Wisbech an important local centre and employment hub. A market town with an inland port, it has 21 beaches, theatres, museums, golf centre, cinemas, equestrian, sporting and fishing facilities, alongside all the usual café culture and nightlife, bars and restaurants you'd expect.

Quality of life

Wisbech, according to a recent study, ranked higher than any other Cambridgeshire area for natural beauty and quality of life. Wisbech has a wide variety of venues and leisure activities on offer.

Wisbech, the Capital of the Fens and proud of its 38 acres of open spaces.

A tranquil and majestic Market Town, Wisbech has something to offer everyone – from a culturally rich collection of cities and towns nearby, to picturesque villages in the countryside.

With a lovely mix of many local independent shops, friendly cafes, theatres, museums, cinemas, and pubs the town is a real pleasure to stroll around and explore. With its 21 beaches, Wisbech provides the perfect base for exploring The Fen Rivers Way walking trail, which follows The River Great Ouse north to King's Lynn and south towards Ely.

It is also the perfect base for enjoying the excellent bird watching, angling, sailing, equestrian, sporting, fishing facilities and golf opportunities nearby.
